1. Information on Undergraduate Programs

A. University College and College of the Liberal Arts

1) College of the Liberal Arts, Law and Liberal Arts Minor, Penn State Brandywine: Drop of Minor

Low enrollments support the decision to discontinue the Law and Liberal Arts Minor at Penn State Brandywine. All students currently in the program will have a reasonable opportunity to complete the minor. There will be no impact on tenure track faculty. The elimination of the minor will become effective Fall 2011.

B. College of Communications

1) Media Law and Policy Option in Bachelor of Arts in Media Studies: Drop of Option and Change in Name of General Option to Society and Culture Option

The Media Law and Policy Option in Media Studies is being dropped due to low student enrollment. The name of the General Option will be changed to Society and Culture Option, which reflects the option's curriculum. The changes will become effective Fall 2011.

C. College of Engineering

1) Associate in Engineering Technology in Surveying Technology: Change in Name

The Associate in Engineering Technology in Surveying Technology name will be changed to Associate in Engineering Technology in Surveying Engineering Technology. The name change accurately describes the program content as engineering technology. The name change will become effective Fall 2011.

D. Penn State Harrisburg

1) Homeland Security Minor: New Program

The new minor in Homeland Security instructs students in homeland security and defense issues, including emergency management, homeland security policy, and the structure of homeland security operations. The new minor will become effective Fall 2011.

2. Information on Graduate Programs

A. Master of Agriculture Degree from the Graduate Program in Horticulture, College of Agricultural Sciences: Drop of Program

The proposal to drop the Master of Agriculture degree from the graduate program in Horticulture offered by the College of Agricultural Sciences was approved by the Graduate Council at its May 11, 2011 meeting.

The Master of Agriculture degree is being dropped due to low enrollment as recommended during a Graduate Program Review in 2004. The Academic Program and Administrative Services Core Council also recommended dropping this program in their letter of recommendations for the College of Agricultural Sciences on January 12, 2011.

B. Applied Mathematics Option and the Logic option from the Ph.D. Degree Program in Mathematics, Eberly College of Science: Drop of Options

The proposal to drop the Applied Mathematics option and the Logic option from the Ph.D. degree program in Mathematics offered by the Eberly College of Science was approved by the Graduate Council at its May 11, 2011 meeting.
2. Information on Graduate Programs (Continued)

B. Applied Mathematics option and the Logic Option from the Ph.D. Degree Program in Mathematics, Eberly College of Science: Drop of Options (Continued)

These formal options were added to the Ph.D. program in order for students to select/specify which Ph.D. qualifying examinations they would be taking: pure, applied or logic exams. These examinations were changed Fall 2008 and are, thus, obsolete.

C. Biomolecular Transport Dynamics Option in the Graduate Program in Chemical Engineering, College of Engineering: Drop of Option

The proposal to drop the Biomolecular Transport Dynamics option in the graduate program in Chemical Engineering offered by the College of Engineering was approved by the Graduate Council at its April 20, 2011 meeting.

The option was offered in conjunction with the Integrative Biosciences [IBIOS] Graduate Degree Program. The IBIOS Program decided to drop this option in 2005 due to the departures of the key faculty and lack of student interest in this program. The majority of the courses required for this area are no longer being offered at Penn State, and none of the current Chemical Engineering faculty conduct research in this area.

D. Dual-Title Graduate Degree Program in Bioethics, College of the Liberal Arts and Adoption of the Dual-Title Degree Program by the Graduate Program in Anthropology (College of the Liberal Arts), the Graduate Program in Biobehavioral Health (College of Health and Human Development), and the Graduate Program in Communication Arts and Sciences (College of the Liberal Arts): New Program

The proposal to create a dual-title graduate degree program in Bioethics offered by the College of the Liberal Arts, and adoption of the dual-title degree program by the graduate program in Anthropology (College of the Liberal Arts), the graduate program in Biobehavioral Health (College of Health and Human Development), and the graduate program in Communication Arts and Sciences (College of the Liberal Arts) was approved by the Graduate Council at its May 11, 2011 meeting.

The objective of the proposed program is to enhance the bioethics curriculum and establish Penn State as a leading center of bioethics scholarship and graduate education. Such training is of great and growing value to students across many disciplines as society strives to come to terms with increasingly complex issues associated with the practice of medicine, access to and delivery of health care, the power of bioscience and technology, and the ways in which biomedical research is funded and conducted. Graduates of the program will be uniquely qualified to compete for jobs on the cutting edge of science, ethics and policy.

E. Master of Business Administration/MD Joint-Degree Program, The Mary Jean and Frank P. Smeal College of Business and the College of Medicine: New Program

The proposal to create a Master of Business Administration/MD joint-degree program offered by The Mary Jean and Frank P. Smeal College of Business and the College of Medicine was approved by the Graduate Council at its April 20, 2011 meeting.

The objective of the joint degree MD/MBA program is to train medical doctors as both good clinicians and skilled business analysts. Interested individuals could range from those who expect to run a hospital, to those who want to work for a major pharmaceutical or biotech firm, to those who want to assume a public policy role in healthcare. The deans at both College of Medicine and The Mary Jean and Frank P. Smeal College of Business believe a joint degree program should be offered in order to be competitive with other top tier medical schools.
